

BOOK BY PSYCHIC DETECTIVE NANCY MYER WINS AWARD

'Travels with My Father' earns recognition as Best New Age Book of 2014

PITTSBURGH, PA November 18, 2014—The GoodKnight Books hardcover memoir, Travels with My Father: Life, Death, and a Psychic Detective, by Nancy Myer of Latrobe, PA, has been declared a Winner for best New Age: Non-Fiction book of 2014 in the 12th annual USA Book Awards.

Myer is known worldwide as the “psychic detective” and has been utilized by law enforcement on more than 870 missing person and murder cases. Of all the strange cases she has been involved with, the most startling involved ghostly visits by her own father, Fred Myer, after his passing in 1971. These experiences formed the main storyline in Travels with My Father.

In the book, Nancy reveals how Fred Myer was key in the evolution of her psychic abilities through the thoughtful lessons he taught her growing up, and then in ghostly form after his untimely death by heart attack at age 54. His return visits to help his widow and daughter prove, says Nancy, that “death can’t stop love.”

Nancy also explores her development as a tool of law enforcement and describes some of her most difficult cases battling what she calls “the worst of humanity.” She describes her struggles to lead a “normal life” raising three energetic children with psychic abilities of their own while also “catching bad guys” and dealing with the ghost of her dad.

Myer is an instructor in writing at the Community College of Westmoreland County and said of the USA Best Book Award, “I am over the moon! Happy does not cover this one!” USA Book Awards, sponsored by USA Book News, is based in Los Angeles and Phoenix and represents one of the largest mainstream book award competitions in the United States.
